

parties stating in unequivocal terms their side of the question, after which in a spirit of compromise they reach an agreement. Finally in most of the concordats, as in the concordat settling the so-called Roman Question, there is an evident desire to rectify and to repair injustices, which of course is essential to permanent peace, for St. James says: "And the fruit of justice is sown in peace, to them that make peace."¹¹

¹¹ St. James, iii, 18.

BIBLIOGRAPHY

- Angelo Mercati, Raccolta di Concordati su Materie Ecclesiastiche tra la Santa Sede e le Autorita Civili. (Rome, 1919).
Conventiones de rebus Ecclesiasticis inter Sanctam Sedem et Civilem Potestatem variis formis initae ex collectione Romana a Vincenzio Nussi, Praesule Domestico, Protonotario Apostolico, Canonico Liberano Digesta. (Rome, 1870.)
Acta Apostolicae Sedis, Vols. XIV, XVII, XIX, XX, XXI.
 F. X. Wernz, S. J., Ius Decretalium (Rome, 1898), Tom. Ius.
Codex Iuris Canonici, (Rome, 1919).
 Encyclical Quanta Cura, Dec. 8th, 1864.
 Encyclical Immortale Dei, Nov. 1st, 1885.
 D. M. Prummer, O. P., Manuale Theologiae Moralis (5th ed., Friburgi Brugoviae 1928), Vol. II.
 Filippo Bernardini, Is the Pope a King? New York, 1929).
The Catholic Encyclopedia, "Concordat."
 Vermeersch-Creusen, Epitome Iuris Canonici, (Mechliniae, 1927).

I SHALL NOT FEAR THE NIGHT

BRO. BEDE SULLIVAN, O. P.

This going out of soul I do not fear,
 While yet I cannot touch what lies beyond;
 The day and night are of the closest bond,
 That I should cringe when darkness shall appear.
 This is my valor while the light is here,
 Untrespassed by the faintest cloud of doubt,
 Nor vainly shall I long to look about,
 When Death shall drape my sun and night is near.

O Soul! content with each half sense of things,
 That clothes thy faith with costly certitude;
 O Soul! enslaved to flesh since you were born
 To share in all its sin and sundry stings,
 Complain not in thy last black interlude,
 An orphan night awakes on timeless morn.