

Hutchins has already retreated. He has arrived at higher learning's point of departure, Metaphysics. He sees the true objective of the higher learning—it must teach men not merely to count, it must teach them to think; it must teach them to live morally. The way of progress lies before him.

MEDITATION IN COUPLETS

PHILIP HYLAND, O.P.

(Gethsemane):

He agrees to the price in the Garden, apart,
Though payment demands He break open His heart.

(Mount Calvary):

But now, buying by dying, He fearfully moans—
So much of His blood will be spilled upon stones!
