tradition. The Feast is universally celebrated with great splendor, and devoted children of Mary should pray earnestly that it will be defined soon.

DESIRE

CAMILLUS LILLIE, O.P.

Flame of my heart, two-tongued, but one,
That sheds across dark path of life
   Both light and shadows:

O quivering Tongue, so aspen-like
In softest breeze; like mortal frame
   When death is near:

Your every breath is warm and sweet;
Yet embered fount, red coal, turns pale
   When left unstirred:

Your life on tears, salt-oil, depends,
On them grows bright, climbs high; yet dies
   When fed with smiles.

O strange Desire! How can you live
Adverse to all, and quaintly feed
   On contradictions?
